Farnham Maltings and Oxford Playhouse are partnering with COMMON on the third session in a programme of events under the banner COMMON: GROUND in the South East.

The session will be held at Oxford Playhouse (Ground Floor foyer) at 18:30 until 21:00, on Thursday 5 December 2019.

COMMON: GROUND is a series of supportive discussions for working and under-class theatre artists and creatives who live and work in the south east. The sessions are an opportunity for those who attend to share the barriers to career progression that they face in their practice, to open a dialogue and identify solutions to how the Oxford Playhouse and Farnham Maltings more effectively support working and under-class artists in their locality and across the region.

The barriers raised during the discussion will be documented as part of COMMON's research into the scale of the challenges and inequalities faced by working and under-class creatives nationally.

This event will be wheelchair-accessible, baby/child friendly and inclusive of working and under-class artists from intersectional backgrounds across race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, gender binaries, visible and non-visible disabilities or illness and neurodiversity.

The sessions are free to attend, and we can offer support if the cost of travel is a barrier to attending. Please call 01252 745424 or email emily.davis@farnhammaltings.com to book your place, and/or if you have any specific requirements, travel or access needs.

About COMMON

COMMON are the leading national arts organisation supporting the UK creative industries to achieve greater intersectional, socio-economic diversity. We partner with arts organisations across the UK to develop practical, structural and sustainable solutions to improve the access to, inclusion in and engagement with their work for creatives and communities from socio-economically disadvantaged backgrounds.
